

Norwegian weather

+15°C / 59°F

This is as warm as it gets in Norway, so we'll start here. People in Spain wear winter-coats and gloves. The Norwegians are out in the sun, getting a tan.

+10°C / 50°F

The French are trying in vain to start their central heating. The Norwegians plant flowers in their gardens.

+5°C / 41°F

Italian cars won't start. The Norwegians are cruising in convertibles.

0°C / 32°F

Distilled water freezes. The water in the Oslo fjord gets a little thicker.

-5°C / 23°F

People in California freeze to death. The Norwegians have their final BBQ before winter.

-10°C / 14°F

The Brits start the heat in their houses. The Norwegians start using long sleeves.

-20°C / -4°F

The Aussies flee from Mallorca. The Norwegians end their Midsummer celebrations. Autumn is here.

-30°C / -22°F

People in Greece die from the cold and disappear from the face of earth. The Norwegians start drying their laundry indoors.

-40°C / -40°F

Paris start cracking in the cold. The Norwegians stand in line at the hotdog stands.

-50° / -58°F

Polar bears start evacuating the North Pole. The Norwegian army postpones their winter survival training awaiting real winter.

-70°C / -94°F

The false Santa moves south. The Norwegian army goes out on winter survival training.

-183°C / - 297.4°F

Microbes in food don't survive. The Norwegian cows complain that the farmers' hands are cold.

-273°C / - 459.4°F

All atom-based movement halts. The Norwegians start saying "Faen, det er kaldt idag! (Damn, it's cold outside today!)"